the mission authority organization role function and the fundamental terminology that affects homeland security in the United States is examined in this book. Homeland security demands quick effective organization to operate in emergencies but simultaneously defies it by the limited time frame and sheer scope of the problem. The author focuses on the five core missions of homeland security: preventing terrorism, securing borders, enforcing immigration law, safeguarding cyber systems, and ensuring resilience to disasters. These core missions require five common skill areas for homeland security operations: risk assessment, determining authority and capability to enact solutions, identifying organizational structure and functions, recognizing operational patterns, and applying analytical techniques to achieve the best performance possible. Unique features include the key points of contact, potential areas of conflict, legal and executive aspects, work flow processes, and their analysis. Examination of risk assessment, review of implementation and response, emergency services and logistics, and political issues are discussed. The glossary of abbreviated terms frequently used is among the special features provided. This up-to-date overview of homeland security and the necessary methods for implementation is a resource of valuable information.

The concept of the green economy has now entered mainstream policy debates and been endorsed by a range of United Nations and other organizations. The Rio 20 UN conference specifically drew attention to the green economy approach in the context of sustainable development. To move away from business as usual, practices need to end poverty, address environmental destruction, and build a bridge to the sustainable future. It is increasingly recognized that the tourism sector can make a major contribution to the green economy through more sustainable practices, climate change mitigation, and ecotourism. The role of tourism sector will continue to be crucial in the post-2015 sustainable development agenda. However, there are ambiguities about how tourism and allied industries can maximize their contribution to human well-being and ensure environmentally sustainable practices. In this context, this book provides consensus about... in a globalizing world frontiers may be in flux but they remain as significant as ever new borders are established even as old borders are erased beyond lines on maps however borders are spatial zones in which distinctive architectural graphic and other design elements are deployed to signal the nature of the space and to guide if not actually control behaviour and social relations within it this volume unpacks how manipulations of space and design in frontier zones historically as well as today set the stage for specific kinds of interactions and convey meanings about these sites and the experiences they embody frontier zones organize an array of functions to facilitate the passage of goods information and people and to define and control access bringing together studies from asia africa the middle east europe and north america this collection of essays casts a wide net to consider borders of diverse sorts investigations of contemporary political frontiers are set within the context of examinations of historical borders that have existed within cities and virtual borders this range allows for reflection on shifts in how frontier zones are articulated and the impermanence of border emplacements as well as on likely scenarios for future frontiers this text is unique in bringing together a number of scholarly perspectives in the arts and humanities to examine how spatial and architectural design decisions convey meaning shape or abet specific social practices and stage memories of frontier zones that no longer function as such it joins and expands discussions in social science disciplines in which considerations of border practices tend to overlook the role of built form and material culture more broadly in representing social practices and meanings

English summary: This book contains ten studies that were a part of the international conference "World View and World Conception Between East and West" held in June 2013 at the University Center Obergurgl in Tyrol. The conference was held in commemoration of Dr. Prof. Reinhold Bichler's retirement. The esteemed scholar's work was the basis for the conference topics, including the conception of space and time, views of the world, their diffusion, and social context. These studies offer important insights into the value and meaning of such constructions and how they helped develop an ethnocentrically infused world view whose literary artefacts are at the center of these investigations. These studies span a chronological and geographic range from the Neo Assyrian Empire in the 8th century BCE to late antiquity and the imperial propaganda of Theodoric at the turn of the 6th century CE. While the majority of the articles are concerned with the conception and imagining of the world among ancient Mediterranean societies, individual articles also bring into view diverse areas such as the Indian Ocean or Central Asia. All of the contributions to this volume work in constant dialogue with each other to challenge major paradigms while anchoring their research in concrete historical contexts.

fair and ethical trade is often criticized for being highly gendered and for institutionalizing the ethical values of consumers the priorities of NGOs and governments and most of all food retailers but little is known about how women smallholder farmers experience diverse ethical standards or whether and how standards reflect their values local cultural and environmental contexts or priorities for achieving sustainable livelihoods linking gender smallholder livelihoods and global ethical trade regulations this book reveals that multiple understandings of social justice environmental sustainability and well being or ethicality exist in parallel to those institutionalized in ethical trade schemes through an in depth case study of smallholder subsistence and French bean farming in Kenya the book grounds the analysis of livelihoods gender and ethical trade in women smallholders perspectives links the macro level of markets with the micro level of livelihoods and engenders relations of power structure and agency in food networks it brings together disparate bodies of theory to illustrate the knowledge strategies and values of women smallholder farmers that are often beyond the scope of ethical trade regulations it also provides a challenging new vision for doing food systems research at a time when transport is high on the political agenda and government decision making is being vigorously scrutinised there is a need for an incisive and accessible analysis of the key policy issues this book is a highly readable introduction to the transport debate from two experts in the field the authors celebrate the advantages of a modern transport system but argue that years of poorly conceived and executed transport policy have resulted in britain’s transport system being far worse than it should be they show that a substandard transport system creates economic social and environmental costs but demonstrate how these can be addressed through affordable and politically deliverable changes using a refreshingly novel approach shaw and docherty use the familiar idea of the journey as the basis for their discussion the book follows members of the smith family as they uncover a wide array of transport issues including why the problems we all encounter as we travel around actually come about which policy trade offs were responsible for creating them in the first place what impacts we all have to suffer as a result and what we can do to fix them this lively and engaging approach will make the book ideal for a wide readership union size influence and relevancy the second chapter shows how unions deal globalization through collective bargaining regarding outsourcing alliances strikes and political action including lobbying and international work standards the final chapter argues that the unions cannot continue unchanged in this age of globalization and asks what they must do to be effective and relevant the questions surrounding how the irish economy was brought to the brink who was to blame and who should pay for these mistakes have been rightly debated at length but beyond this very legitimate exercise there are deeper questions that need to be answered these questions relate to why we made the decisions we did not just in the last 10 years but over the last 80 how did certain industries become prominent at the expense of others banking as opposed to fisheries international markets as opposed to indigenous industry and job creation are our problems structural in nature and most importantly what do we need to know to make sure that this crisis does not happen again these are the questions set by this book it will look at the development of the irish economy over the past eight decades and will argue that the 2008 financial crisis up to and including the imf bailout of 2010 and the subsequent change of government cannot be explained simply by the moral failings of those in banking or property development alone the problems are deeper more intricate and more dangerous if we remain unaware of them but also potentially avoidable in the future if we break the cycle
