Women and Law 2021-04-17 There are few things in our society that provoke such raw emotions as that of child abuse. Most people, justifiably so, are outraged when they hear of allegations of abuse and their anger is intensified as they learn of what seems to be an inappropriate criminal justice response. However, the debate on child abuse usually happens through visceral emotions rather than facts. Taking emotions out of a child abuse debate is much easier said than done but it is of utmost importance to identify the facts when the reader has a better understanding of the scope of child abuse. They can become more objective while still maintaining their passion about ways to protect this vulnerable and targeted population. Child abuse, child exploitation, and criminal justice responses are unique in that it offers the reader contributing facts. Based not only through scholarly research but practical experience working in field from this wonderful collaboration of criminal investigator and forensic nurse thus providing much personal insight and demonstrating how these two areas of expertise can join forces to achieve the objective of working as a team to facilitate safeguarding children. The authors also presents the research on this complex yet worthy topic by identifying the unique challenges of investigating these offenses while ultimately bringing the perpetrators to justice and presenting the research from various perspectives of child abuse including both national and international issues and responses.

Trends and Issues in Victimology 2009-10-02 Concern for the victims of crime first emerged with the formation of the Criminal Injuries Compensation Board in 1964. This has continued with the increase in crime rates since the 1970s and 1980s and in the aftermath of a number of high profile trials in this book, Sandra Walklate offers an introduction to the key theoretical, methodological, and substantive issues in victimology and criminal victimization. She situates the contemporary preoccupation with criminal victimization within the broader social and cultural changes of the last twenty-five years, written in the context of post September 11 and alongside the events in Madrid of 2004 and London in July 2005. It questions who can be considered a victim of crime, and what the response to such victimization might look like.
