In a world that is falling apart, in a Muslim-influenced land that is on the verge of a civil war, in a nameless city, they learn to know each other. Nadia and Saeed have broken away from their families, ride a motorcycle, live secularly, and wear dark clothing as protection against the advances of strangers. Saeed still lives with his parents, is more reserved and takes his religious practices very seriously. However, as the city around them burns, the attacks increase, and the security situation becomes more precarious, Nadia and Saeed find themselves together. They want a shared future in freedom, and there are rumors of doors that can take those who pass through them to distant places. But the way through these doors must be bought with a lot of money as the violence escalates. They decide to take this step, giving up their country and old life. Exit West is an extremely touching novel that deals with the central themes of our time: flight and migration. Mohsin Hamid proves that literature can be poetic and at the same time political. With this fascinating novel, he made it to the Man Booker Prize shortlist 2017.
